

Jerry Byers is a business trainer and coach focusing on management development. He has 20 years of training and development experience in the U.S. and holds an MA in Energy Economics/Politics, BA's in Russian Studies and International Relations, and an AA in Educational Psychology. Additionally, Jerry has organized and helped develop events ranging from small trainings to large conferences throughout the U.S. and Russia. He currently lives in St. Petersburg and works as a consultant for international firms in business communications. Additionally, he contributes as a writer and editor on economic, energy and political issues. Part-time, Jerry is an American BBQ aficionado and hosts/caters events locally.